Glencore case

SNH reiterates its call for an investigation to be opened, following its complaint lodged with the Special Criminal Court of Yaoundé on 6 November 2023

The Executive General Manager of the National Hydrocarbons Corporation (SNH) informs both the national and international opinion that, amid the legal actions against the executives and employees of the multinational Glencore for corruption of foreign agents, a pre-trial hearing was conducted by the Southwark Crown Court in London (United Kingdom) on this 9 October 2024, where a procedural timetable was established.

During the hearing, the judge, with consensus from the legal representatives of all Parties, delineated the key phases of the legal process, including dates for evidence exchange, further pre-trial hearings, and the trial scheduled for June 2027.

This development from the UK judiciary provides SNH with an opportunity to remind that it is still awaiting the commencement of hearings by the Special Criminal Court, pursuant to its complaint lodged on 6 November 2023.

It is worth mentioning that the complaint by SNH is subsequent to Glencore's conviction by the Southwark Crown Court, with a ruling dated 3 November 2022.

The Executive General Manager of SNH maintains optimism that the Cameroonian accomplices of these criminal acts recognised by Glencore, will be swiftly identified and punished in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Cameroonian Penal Code.
